This is practically the final chapter, except so far as the question may be taken up in treaty negotiation with Japan, in the issue growing out of the differences with that country over the action of the San Francisco authorities in prohibiting Japanese school children attending the schools set aside for the whites.

Authority to refuse permission to the classes of persons cited by the president to enter the continental territory of the United States is contained in the immigration bill approved February 20.

Parley P. Williams, general Second Office Abandoned.

Orders were issued by the Oregon Short Line yesterday discontinuing the telegraph office in the Union Pacific yards at this point. This office with one in the Southern Pacific yards was established about two months ago with a view to fa-dition of some of the railroad crossings and said there was an apparent desire on the part of the railroads to avoid putting them into the shape required by thei franchises. Mr. Williams replied and ad mitted that in the matter of the Oregon Short Line cars blocking crossings there was perhaps ground for complaint. "Don't you think that a space between cars the entire width of the street, when trains are lying across crossings would be satisfactory." incuring Mr. Williams and satisfactory?" inquired Mr. Williams, and the council indicated that to the best of the council indicate its belief it would.

Mr. Williams continued: "Now in the matter of these crossings, what is your understanding regarding the work we should do on them?" To this Mr. Carter replied that the franchise called for planking between the rails and for two feet ceach side of them with the necessary balasting. Mr. Williams replied that he r

Negotiations That Failed.

Things might have gone along in this strain for some little time had it not been for Councilman Hobday reminding the council what the real reason for the meeting had to do with the matter of railroad accommo-dation for the transportation of the city's garbage. He then proceeded to out-line the situation up to this time and when he had finished Health Commissioner Stewart told of his efforts to make an arrangement with the Oregon Short Line by which a spur track would be run to the sewer farm and the garbage dumped there. "This matter has been delived to "This matter has been delayed too iong already," he said, "and if we do no take steps to get rid of the accumulation of refuse now on hand we are going to have a lawsuit or two on our hands when spring opens up."
